Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Medical News, Vol. 85: A Weekly Medical Journal; July December, 1904 Accordingly the dictum virtually has been promulgated on the part of some of the larger institutions that the moral right of existence be denied some of the smaller schools. In so far as this condemnation and stamp of disapproval applies to institutions existing, not because of a valid need but flourishing as a public and professional menace, there can be no honest difference of opinion among medical educators. With inferior teachers and entire absence of proper facilities these ventures in the past have frequently proved not unprofitable as commercial enterprises, the principle having been the maximum production at the minimum expense. Such factories unfortunately have been furnished with sufficient raw material to keep the plant in operation and foist the inferior product of the wretched machinery upon society. It is well known that the number of these bastard medical schools already has diminished materially. There remain, however, many comparatively small institutions of recognized merit and established reputations with accorded honesty of purpose and...
